

Trade Price Conservatories Add Two New Conservatory Styles to Range

October 3rd 2008 - Bournemouth, Dorset - Trade Price Conservatories have today announced two new conservatory styles to their extensive range.

The two new styles; Gullwing & P-Shape Edwardian have been added to their online range, giving customers more choice when it comes to configuring their dream conservatory.

The Gullwing conservatory earns its name due to its distinctive 'wings' and is more suited to a wider area than a traditional conservatory, ideal for wider properties or for those looking for a larger living area inside their conservatory.

The Edwardian, already a best seller, now has the benefit of being available in a P-shape configuration, combining the practicality of a standard P-shape conservatory with the style of an Edwardian design.

Owner Karl Muspratt commented: "The addition of the Gullwing & Edwardian P-shape conservatories gives our customers even more choice and better enables them to pick the perfect conservatory to suit their home. In particular we are hoping the Edwardian P-shape will prove a big hit with our customers as it's something they have been asking us for, which we have bought in due to that demand."

The property market in the UK may be in freefall at the moment but cash-strapped Britons are instead spend money on improving their homes rather than moving, resulting in Trade Price Conservatories posting very strong growth figures for 2008 so far with customers opting to add value to their homes rather than opting to sell and move in a property market slump.

Trade Price Conservatories are a leading supplier of DIY conservatories nationwide in the UK. To see their range of conservatories including the 0% finance range, see the company website at <http://www.tradepriceconservatories.com>
